I am looking for recommendations for headsets with boom microphones. I will use them with my Kenwood TS450 and my Yaesu FT530. I would like to find one with one earpiece for the FT530, and two earpieces for the TS450. I have seen several inexpensive ones that were attached to some Radio Shack walkie talkies, and one that came with a sound blaster type board, but I don't know of a source for these. I have also heard of an expensive brand called Heil.
Are the Heil ones worth the cost, and does anyone have a phone number for the Heil company so that I can get a catalog.

Thanks for the help,

Hello. I have the following amateur radio equipment for sale:

Swan Cygnet 270B 10-80 mtr. transceiver Hethkit HM-2140 Dual HF Wattmeter 10 meter dipole antenna Misc. books, manuals, and magazines.

All of the equipment is in perfect working condition. I was into amateur radio for a few years but I have lost interest in it. This is a good set-up for a beginner. $400 (+shipping)

Please e-mail me if interested since I don't read this newsgroup very often. Thanks...

I agree with Scott. I had the FT-470 when it first came out and replaced it with the 530 when it was introduced last year. It is a wonderful radio and well worth the extra $125. As a matter of fact, that is NOT a good deal even! I sold my FT-470 with speaker mic, extra batteries, dc pack and case for $250. The Ft-530 cost me $409 out the door. last year at Dayton they were briefly available for $375 at a couple dealers.
